Editor's View...

For all of you who thought the last Dragon show was the last ought to be pleased to hear that your wrong! Yes, another Dragon show is on its way, and soon. This show, the North West Dragon Convention/Show is being organised by Mr. B. O'Connor of Pulser Software. Its aimed at the Noth of England Dragon owner, mainly, who don't seem to have received much support in the way of shows. Anyway, more information inside, and good luck to them.

Your trusty friend, master of the printer, MacGowan has been keeping a rather low profile lately, but have now come up with some programs for the Dragon, printer orientated, of course. Its nice to see that company is still alive, and kicking, since the quality of their software is really first class.

Here at the Dragon's den we are getting short of some articles. So when any of you get out the pen, or word-processor, as the case may be, write us up an article, or even two, and your plam could be placed with software, in return! So get writing... and if you don't know what kind of stuff we want then write and I'll let you know. Remember, you don't have to be an expert on the subject, or have a degree in English lit. OK?! Bye for now, see you soon...

Andrew Hill, Editor.

Pricing Policy

There have been comments in the past in the computer press about the prices charged for programs by software houses. One comment that has been made is that software houses contributed to their own demise by the exhorbitant prices charged for some programs and their 'Get Rich Quick' policy.

Let me discuss, but firstly let me state that I do not agree or disagree, except that I was not, nor am I now, prepared to pay f8 to f10 for a games program that will probably only be used a few times. However, my attitude alters if you are talking about a utility or business type of program.

If, for the moment, we ignore overhead costs and profit and concentrate on the costs which can be directly associated with producing and selling a program, then we find that the costs involved are -

- 1. The development costs (programmers time, ect.).
- 2. Cost of blank cassette.
- 3. Cost of reproduction.
- 4. Cost of packaging.
- 5. Royalties.

Once the program has been written then the development costs can be considered a fixed cost. The cost of the cassette and reproduction, packaging and variable costs (ie. they vary in proportion to the number of cassettes produced/sold). Royalties could be fixed or variable dependent on wheather the royalty has been paid as a one off amount or according to the numbers produced/sold.

One programmer whose program was being marketed for about £9.00 was looking for sales of at least a 1000.

Let us consider the costs ect. assuming the following -

a. Development costs £5000.00
b. Blank cassette 50p each
c. Reproduction 40p each
d. Packaging 10o each

Then, if a 1000 are sold the following would be the financial result.

Fixed costs
(development) £5000.00

Variable costs
(cassette, reproduction, packaging) £1000.00

Profit £3000.00

It should be noted that a program selling at £9.00 will produce a contribution of £8 towards fixed costs and otherheads. Thus the total contribution is £8000 (sales £7000 - variable costs £1000).

Let us consider the effect if the selling price is reduced to say £7.50, £6.00, £3.00, then to maintain the same contribution the following quantities would have to be sold.

| Selling Price of Programs | f7.50 | £6.00 | £3.00 |
|---------------------------|-------|--------|-------|
| Variable Costs | | | |
| Unit Contribution | FA 50 | 45. NA | £7.00 |

Number of copies which would have to be sold to achive a contribution of £8000 1231 1600 4000

By reducing the selling price there is less contribution per unit available to pay fixed costs and other overheads such as advertising ect. However, the 64,000 Dollar question is whether sufficient more sales would result and give a larger overall monetary contribution.

This has been looked at very simplistically and has not taken into account middlemen (wholesalers) and the costs quoted have only been used for illustration purposes as I have no idea of the actual costs involved. Futher, I may not have included all costs.

Eddie Freeman, 80B Main Road, Old Duston, Northampton, NN5 6RA.

OUR REPLY Well, Eddie, thank you for your interesting letter. I'm sure that many have been interested by the thoughts provoked by it. Two points which I would like to point out. Firstly, is that there are staff wages, office rental/rates ect. also to be deducted from those profits. Secondly the actual price for a C5 cassette, including reproduction, in £345 for 1000, which is a big saving of £655 on your quoted in the letter, although you state that its estimated only, thats just 35p per cassette, duplicated/

If any readers would like to add to any comments made by Eddie, or any software houses feel they have a case to defend, please write in and we'll publish your letter.

Alone & Deserted

I'm very lonely here in Greece, after Dragon Data collapsed. I have a Dragon 32 and a cassette recorder only, I'm afraid, but I can't find any disk drives for my Dragon here. Anyway, I have to rely on the basic stuff.

I do have quite a few games for my Dragon, and adventures which I find stimulating and of great interest. I have some problems with Calixto Island.

Satos Mandalos, 34 Kifissias Ave, Ampelokipi, GR-115 26 Athens, Greece.

OUR REPLY Any reader who would like to write to Satos, concerning help with Calixto Island, or just the Dragon in general can contact him at the address above. He has very good English, and should therefore find no difficulty in answering, or reading, your letters.

Roaring Magazine Change...

The Drag Mag. (not us!), which started life several months ago on Prestel, and then moved on two both printed and electronic magazines now have decided to drop out of 'electronic' magazine publishing, and concentrate on the printed version. This change has also brought about a change in their name, from the Drag Mag to The Dragon's Roar!

A years subscription to their new magazine, Dragon's Roar, now costs £7.50. More information can be obtained from the editor (a lion, no doubt!), Simon Jones, 37 Collins Meadow, Harlow, Essex, CM19 4EN. Their dropping out of the market left the Dragon with no electronic magazine on Prestel. Until recently, that was. Now Julian Cigdell, former editor of Dragon's Tail, is editor of a small magazine on Prestel's Clubspot 810.

Take it Away, Dragon!

Dave Cadman, a musician, has been teaching his Dragon to play music! Dave regularly send his 'excellent' music on RTTY for the Dragon, and is said to be one of the most popular spots on Dragnet, the RTTY for Dragon owners. His music is now avalible to more of us, on cassette and disk. His music ranges from classical to rag-time, and is produced on an extended version of Microdeal's Composer. For more information contact Dave at 32 Breedon Hill Road, Derby, DE3 6TG.

What do Printers Talk About ?

MacGowan, of course! MacGowan Consultants, the publishers of the excellent Printer Control, have just released a few more titles on their Dragon range of software, all concerned with printers, of course! Their first is Special Control, which is Printer Control with a difference. Its been enchansed so the producing of forms, and the like, is much or easy, with right hand justified bit-image graphics, and more. Prices go from f20.00 on cassette and f25.00 disk, depending on what printer you own.

Their second release is Lightpen Software, for the Trojan light-pen. The software which came with the pen was its main down-fall. Now MacGowan has put this right with a machine code program, with printer dumping and ability to use all of the screen! Prices may vary, once again, according to printer but generally f7.00 on cassette or f9.00 disk. The Trojan lightpen, itself, is also avalible from MacGowan, with the new software priced at an extra f7.00 to above prices.

Monitor is, say MacGowan, all you could ask for from a monitor, 'and more', including printer output. They claim it's idiot proof, and user friendly and could even be used as a teaching aid for someone who would like to learn assembly. Prices vary, but from f12.00 cassette and f15.00 disk. The last release is Lister, no price as yet, but is designed to give listing a really good look! What it does, we don't yet know. Version 25 of Printer Control, their famous word-processor, is now avalible. Its got an improved keyboard entering system, and improved graphics entery. Prices, new or updating your old version, by phoning MacGowan, or writing. More details on 0400 72085 or by writing to MacGowan Consultants, 6 Arnhem Drive, Caythorpe, Nr. Grantham, Lincs. NG32 3DQ.

Metal-on-Metal released...

As reported last month in Dragon Magazine, Quickbeam's latest, Metal-on-Metal, has been released. One of our readers, Tudor Davies, spotted the game being shown by Quickbeam at the 6809 Show, and says that its based on the smash hit Uridium'! He says that the ship is a 'large sprite'. Still no screen pics yet to show you, though. More information from Quickbeam Software, 36 Salisbury Road, Hoddersden, Herts. EN11 ØHX.

Don't Stop the Shows...

A show is being organised by Mr.B. O'Connor, of Pulser Software. It will take place of Saturday, September 12th at Bishop Hershaw School, Rochdale, Lancs. Its called the North West England Dragon Convention/Show. Entery price is f1.50 (adults) and f1.00 (children). Many Dragon retailers have expressed interest in attending the show, and so it should be a good one. Their is also a 'computer clinic' promised, to sort-out to help people with practical and technical problems, and also demos. Sounds good, so make sure that you make it a date! More information from Pulser Software, 36 Foxhill, High Crompton, Shaw, Oldham, OL2 7NQ. Anyone interested in having a stall should contact Mr. O'Connor on 0706 849189, before the end of July, if possible.

FOOTHOTE

We'd like to hear from you on where you think would be the ideal place for a Dragon show to be held! Don't just think of your-self, but try to think of easy access for as many Dragon owners as possible. We'll then use this information as best as possible, as now, with low show attendance, it is very important for an organiser to pick what will be a good spot for a show. So get your maps out and start the suggstions rolling in... (editial address, on cover).

O O ARTICLES WANTED!

Write us up an article on ANYTHING! Don't think you have to have a special talent, because you don't... any we'll offer help with it, editing it for you. And if we publish your article, and its the 'Star Readers Article' for that month then we'll offer you a choice of software, or vouchers, or special discounts. So get writing! Remember, while we like articles typed to printed, as long as they are legiable then hand-written will do fine (programs on cassette only, though). TOO Where's Function 777

Yes, where's Punchjaw and his regular adventure column this month? Well, he doesn't know we know, and he definatley doesn't know that you know. He's gone off on his holls without sending us his adventure page! So the least we can do is tell you where we've found out he's gone ...! To Blackpool! Yes, and if he doesn't send us a post-card, which we very much doubt if he will (too busy getting a tan, or drunk (or both!) to remember us back here at Dragon Magazine H.Q. slaving away over a hot keyboard for hours on end (no, days on end)) then we'll have either to get you all to send him blackmail letters (not to do the Adventure Page ever again, or we'll all take a trip upto Dumfires, Scotland, and, well we decide what to do with him then ...) or to let us PUBLISH his holiday snaps (if he bothered to take any)! In fact that sounds so good I hope he DOESN'T send us a post card, nor read this little paragraph about himself! Anyway, he did send us a review (which I have had the upper-most pleasure of adding little comments to!) of what looks like a good new adventure from a small new company, so read on to get just a litte of the very original Punchjaw literary which he is so infamous for...

TITLE : LARKSPUR WALDORF is TRAPPED!

PRICE : £2.00 inc.

AUTHORS : John Smallwood & Hobson Bullman

SUPPLIER: John Smalwood, 51 Kings Drive, Fullwoo, Preston, Lancs, PR2 3HQ.

This is the first graphic adventure in the <code>Larkspur Trilogy</code>. You control the '<code>Iuckless Larkspur Waldorf</code>'. What, or even who he is beats me. You do not play the part of <code>Larkspur</code>, merely <code>control</code> him. This is a little strange since, you usually play the part of the hero. Perhaps he's remote control!

Don't get too excited about the game having graphics as there's not much to get excited about in that department. It is the presentation and the smooth running of the game that makes it outstanding.

The screen is split into five windows. Three small squares at the top of the screen. One displays Waldorf pulling one of his 'lickless expressions'. The centre box displays the graphics view. This is a simple wire drawing although quite effective. Nothing as classy as Trekboer or the Vortex Factor. And not every location has a picture. The third box displays your inventory. A centre bar neatly seperates the two screens. On this bar is written your optional movement (N.W.S.E.U.D). The bottom half of the screen is used to display your commands and also describes where abouts you are in the castle, which scrolls up beautifully at just the right speed. By the way, Waldorf is in the castle, high up on a rock. Guess what? You have to rescue him!

The screen presentation is nothing short of <code>fantastic</code>. Probably the tidiest adventure presentation I have yet seen. Except, <code>perhaps</code> for Juxta-Position. The loading screen is also <code>effective</code>, displaying a picture of <code>Haldorf</code> battling with a snake and getting his <code>leg chewed off</code> by a <code>Pacman</code>.

The game itself isn't bad, either, perhaps not as hard as 'The Thirteenth Task' or as sophisticated as 'The Immortal Strain', but still good. Since you are trapped in a castle, you'd expect the number of locations to be enormous. Well, your right (that had all of you who though he was going to say, 'Well, your wrong'! -ED). The vast number of locations will confuse you and unless you make a map you will surely get lost.

Unless, like the Editor (what ever gave you that impression? Though, your right, of course! -ED), you have a good memory (ha, ha!).

On my first expadition through the castle I discovered a Medieval Torture Chamber (thats what we should use to get articles out of our readers! -ED), a banana (no comments) (why? -ED), a bar and a wine cellar, which was more my cup of tea (took the words out of my mouth, about you -ED) and a changing room for swimmers. So I put on the cravat (before you set off on your holidays? -ED) I found earlier, and not forgetting my hat and my banana (of course not -ED), I went for a swim. Several strokes later I was smashed to death on some rocks (so we can't expect your adventure page next month, either? -ED).

The adventure isn't the most original I've seen, although the name, 'Larkspur Waldorf' is. And at only £2 any adventurer would be mad (like you -ED) not to buy it. In fact, if no one buys it I must be wasting time reviewing games that no one really intends to buy. I must stress that at only £2 it makes it one of the best budget games I have seen. Buy it now. You won't be disappointed. Its one great game. Congratulations to John and Hobson! Look forward to the second part...

Title : Crazy Foota Price : £2.99 inc.

Supplier : Computage, 27 Coombe Road, Southminster, Essex, CMO SAH.

I Filled in my cheque and sent it off to Computape and within three days I had received my order. I have to say that Computape are $very\ good$ with regard to their mail order service.

The cassette inlay is simply a screen dump of the title screen (which is in PMODE 4, as is the whole game) and some instructions. The instructions are clear and consise. They explain all. The music, as the game starts isn't really music when compared with $Fire\ Force$, Shocktrooper, ect. but is a simple tune consisting of a few beeps.

The game is played by two players using joysticks. The game play is good, especially when a goal is scored. It is a very good idea to have a digitised crowd applaud a goal and this greatly adds to the game. There are eleven men to each side which are small and clear, but not detailed. They do flicker when running, but not enough to distract.

The right-hand joystick controls all the men with their right hand in the air, and vice-versa for the left-hand player. When a man is chosen, a maker alongside the screen shows which man is in use and that man also waves when stood still.

The game plays extremely well, although at first the controls are difficult to master, but 'practice makes perfect', as they say. If you are looking for a simple-type game, with a degree of difficulty and a lot of skill required then buy Crazy Foota!

COLUMN!

Helo, once again, and welcome, to this, the monthly delve into the world of communications. This month we're diving further into the deepest depths of Prestel, emerging only to take a brief look at a couple of B.B.'s - better known as Bulletin Boards!

To begin, the news of a mini revolution in Prestel; this is arisen from the fact that they've finally intoduced keyword searching! Keyword searching being where you may simply type in a word related to the section you wish to go, without slogging through the many thousands of of slow, and costly, menu's. For example, if you wish to see how many Arsenal are beating Spurs by (who ever they may be - ED) you may simply type *FOOTBALL f (hash), leading you straight to the football section, avoiding having to find the direct page number!

Indeed, as outlined last month, the benefits of Prestel are seemingly never ending, and as demonstrated by their new keyword searching, always improving. To further this, another recent addition to Prestel see's the introduction of Electronic Yellow Pages — or E.Y.P. for short. E.Y.P. simply being a glorified, nationwide, version of that infamous directory; although this time, it's a case of 'Let your phone bill do the walking'!

Onwards, now, and to <code>Flectronic Mail</code>, an aspect of Prestel which isn't quite so fast in improving — said to be one of the <code>worst in the U.K.</code> As soon as you subscribe to <code>Aunty Stella</code> (ok, ok, Prestel!), you are given your very own mailbox (MBX), for messages ect... Although, this is limited to the screen size, which consits of 15 lines, each of 35 characters long. Also annoying, is the method of replying: Instead of typing <code>*REPLY f</code> (hash), after reading the message you must first note the MBX number, go to page <code>*77f</code> (hash), enter the MBX number, and then, finally, type the message! Very tedious, very slow, and even worse, very costly — as time is money!

A more popular side of Prestel/Micronet is their unique 'Gallery' which gives the would be Robert Maxwell's (or, if your better at it, Rupert Murdock's - ED) a chance to create their very own pages for all to read. A special page, or 'frame', costs just 99p for a period of three months; you are allowed a maximum of 26 frames, updating them whenever you want, at a cost of just 1p! Proving it really is value for money, I, of course, used these facilities to produce, yes, you've guessed it, The Drag Mag! The Drag Mag being the first Dragon only pages to 'hit' Prestel/Micronet since the glorious days of Dragon Data!

Another area of Prestel/Micronet which is of particular interest to most, are the popular chatlines, allowing you to 'talk' to anyone else using the system. Prestel offers only one chatline, costing 7p per message, while if your a Micronet member as well you can enjoy upto ten chatlines, ranging from religion to adventuring! All Micronet chatlines are completely free, as is the 'celebrity chatline' enabling you to talk to all those famous celebs., such as Rolffy Harris, Paul Daniels, and and even nasty Nick Cotton!

Cont...

And so ends our little tour of Prestel this month, as we progress onwards to B.B.'s. In short, Bulletin Boards are 'mini Prestels', offering a varied amount of information, which is usually free to access. The majority of B.B.'s are at 300/300 baud, as stated last month, although an increasing amount can be accessed by Dragon owners at 1200/75 baud. Indeed, one such board can boast being of the best in the U.K.; that board being 'Gnome at Home', or 'Micrognome' (not run by Paul Daniels? — EI) and is available by dialing 01-888 8894. Micrognome offers many of the facilities seen on Prestel, including their unique chat lines with the sysop — or systems operator.

Well, that about sums it up for this month. Next month I'll be taking a look at <code>Multi-User</code> games, along with <code>YOUR</code> queries... Yes, that <code>IS</code> a hint, so if you haven't done already write to the address under the header, <code>NOW!</code> I'll leave you then with a list of the most popular B.B.'s, all of which are available at <code>1200/75</code> baud. Finally, if your <code>kind Ed</code> (I haven't said yes yet... - ED) will allow me a quick mention, <code>The Drag Mag</code> is now available in <code>newsletter</code> format, and indeed, by sending a mere postage stamp you can access your first issue free! Until next time... <code>Happy communicating!</code>

XXX EMTER TODAY! XXX

ARCADE-YIER

ANDREW HILL, 13 Parry Jones Close, Blaina, Gwent, NP3 3NH.

As promised last month, in this months column I bring to you some reviews of some American/Tandy software which is generally not available in Britain. If you want to purchase any American software, or quality Tandy software then maybe your only answer is to subscribe to Rainbow or Hot Co-Co and order direct, but, as you know, that works out to be very expensive, and now Elkan Electronics don't inport the Dragon and Tandy mags from the U.S. then that is the only way you can get hold of them. Unless you know anyone who imports them ? Anyone know the address of the National Tandy Group? If so drop me a line and I'll get in touch with them. Whats all the fuss about, you say ? Well, I'll tell you what its all about... in the U.S. theres a LOT of quality software around for the Dragon, and what's more, its the games like your friends, or maybe foes (!) on the Spectrum, Commodore and Atari have been playing! Yes, games like The OFFICIAL Zaxxon, Bar-Tender (on the Dragon called Brew Master), to name but two, and other excellent games like Pooyan, Colour Car and Sea Dragon. The list goes on. Games which SHOULD have be brought over here. More on that in a future issue.

But now onto my first American review... Brew Master. This game is that which 'US Gold were selling for other 'lesser' computers, under the name 'Bar-Tender' which was very sucessful. Its a game where you've got to keep your customers at the bars happy by keeping them filled up with drink, and not forgetting to collect their empty glasses before they slide off the edge of the bar! The graphics are not super, the movement is, I found, bad. But the idea is great, original, and provided me with some of the best fun I've had on my Dragon for ages. I really enjoyed this game, having fancied it in Boots one day last year when it was on display on the Commodore. A game of enjoyment, if not experiencing any graphical wanders.

Now, allow me to move forward onto a small simple game which goes by the name of Mazeland. And is simply that. Nothing much to this game. Your just being chased around the maze by some small objects, and you have to get some pellets. As you've by now probably guessed, its based on PacMan (oh no, I here you say!) but none the worse for that. I've enjoyed it much more than I have any Pac Man. The sound it just screaching. But its good, I thought, how it was done, and I liked it. A simple, but enjoyable game when you what to get away from the graphically amazing Airball, and difficulty of Juxta-Position.

Now I'll have to stop my reviews of U.S. games there. Why? Because I want to bring you some next month too! And so now onto some high scores, this month sent in by reader I. Ross, who lives up there in Caithness, Scotland! He's scored 251,040 (level 23) on the ever popular Chuckie Egg, and 36,100 on Donkey Kong (The King). In Manic Miner he's got 17,170 and in Microdeal's pocket money program, Tea Time, 18,720. And his final high score was on Ninja Warrior which was originaly brought out by Programer's Guild (Program Factory in the US) and now being marketed at a very relistic price by Computape. He managed to get a good 37,200 on that, and so earned himself a black belt (thats as far as I got!). Well done to him for some very good scores. Beat 'um can you? Then send them in! Any high score for any games wanted as it allows other readers to 'compete' against you. And competition brings about a heathly games column. So get out your gaming joystick, through away 'Ye Olde Dragone Dater' (no, not a spelling error) joystick, and get gaming. Now, So until we meet again. Don't know where, but I know when (next month, at about the same time) see 'ya, and send in ALL your hi-scores, maps, pokes, codes and request. ANYTHING. Address under header, Here's the AUGUST 1987 Dragon Magazine Reaader's Chart... Agree, or disagree with it you have the chance to change it!
